

Who puts all of this information together?

Listing names can be a problem because someone could easily be left out, and others prefer that their names not be listed. Contacting the candidates, gathering information, and updating the website is accomplished by a team of volunteers from a variety of political parties, religious views, education, and walks of life. The members of the team vary for each election.