

How can the local races for my area be represented?

Before VIP can add a new county to the area we cover, volunteers in that county need to be identified since candidates are usually contacted by their constituents. We need someone who can create a team by locating someone with computer skills, others with knowledge of local issues, and others willing to connect with candidates whose names will be on their personal ballot. So, the volunteer county coordinator organizes volunteers in their local area to contact the candidates and give them opportunity to respond to VIP questions that pertain to their local area. Contact kathy@voterinformation.org to brainstorm the process.
